A Tribute to Pioneering Photographer Fred Herzog

Saturday, November 6, 2021

First

Ants on a Log

fresh celery, whipped sunflower seed tahini, pickled golden raisins, truffles

Executive Chef Phil Tees' elevated take on this Girl Scout cookbook classic found its visually appealing nickname in the 1950s.

WINE PAIRING

2020 Riesling

Second

Waldorf Salad

frisée, roasted walnuts, grapes, celery, ambrosia apple, onion dressing

First prepared in the 1890's at New York's Waldorf Hotel, this salad came to fame in the Hilton International Cookbook of 1960.

It remains a worldwide classic, second only to the Caesar on menus around the globe.

2020 Viognier

Third

Short Rib Wellington

48-hour braised beef short ribs, wild mushroom duxelles, roasted garlic potato purée, mushroom demi-glace

In 1965, Beef Wellington was featured in the White House cookbook, celebrated by The New York Times, and prepared on television by Julia Child. It has been a North American gourmet dining staple ever since.

WINE PAIRING

2019 Cabernet Franc Reserve

Fourth

Baked Alaska

hazelnut ice cream, whipped maple meringue

WALL STREET MANHATTAN

Dividend syrup, bourbon, sherry

Fred Herzog's photographs are rich with eye-catching colour. They are complex, intriguing, and full of life, much like mid-20th-century Vancouver. Herzog arrived in the place he would photograph most from Germany, in 1953, working as a self-taught medical photographer and later UBC instructor by day; taking to the city streets on foot or motorbike, evenings and weekends. His ground-breaking colour images were only shared with a wider public from the early 2000s, when digital inkjet printing allowed him to make satisfactory prints from Kodachrome slides. Exhibition and images courtesy of Equinox Gallery.
